Etching Press Installed Tonight

The lecture on "Etching and Etchers" to be given at the Arts and Crafts Hall this evening, by Mary J. Coulter of San Francisco, formerly Curator of Prints at the Art Institute of Chicago, should be of great interest to all art-lovers in Carmel and vicinity.

The talk will cover the various methods employed in the making of prints; also a comprehensive resume of the history of etching from its very beginning up to the present day, and it will be illustrated with lantern slides showing the work of the great etchers from the earliest master (1446) to the artists of today. These slides have been gathered from the Museums of Europe and America in a long period of study and research and will give the privilege of seeing in an evening a collection of prints that it would not be possible to see in any one Museum in the world.

After the lecture, Ralph M. Pearson, a well-known American etcher, now identified with the Taos group of artists, will formally inaugurate Carmel's new etching press, and will print two proofs—one a good print and the other a poor one, showing how much depends on the printing even after a technically perfect plate has been made.

Mr. Pearson's work occupies a very high place among American etchers and is ever of the best, both in conception and technique, and his contribution to the evening will be both valued and appreciated.

This etching press will furnish new life to our local artists. Painters, sculptors, architects of note, may meet on a common ground in this new enthusiasm for etching. Artists and business people alike are cooperating in this work. Besides Mr. Pearson's and Mrs. Coulter's contributions, several local collections will be lent for the exhibition, which will add very materially to the interest of the occasion.

Dr. J. E. Beck, pharmacist, is purchasing a new supply of nitric acid for "biting" the forthcoming masterpieces in copper.

C. O. Goold, dictator of transportation, promises to run a special bus from Monterey on the night of the lecture.

It all means new life to Carmel as an art center—one petite renaissance.

The following have contributed etchings to the exhibition: Mrs. R. C. Harrison, Mrs. Allan Griffin, Mrs. G. Poingdestre, Mrs. C. L. Jocelyn, Mrs. George Blackman, Mrs. Dorothy Wegg, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Botke, Mrs. V. Mott Porter, Miss Nellie Smith, H. P. Glassell, Miss Waldvogel, and others.

John Galen Howard, Professor of Architecture in the University of California, with his family are occupying their cottage on Monte Verde below Twelfth. The Howard family has long been identified with Carmel, having been regular visitors for twenty years. The youngest son is a rising artist, having exhibited in the Paris Salon. His brother has studied architecture in the Beaux Arts. Both young men have traveled extensively in Italy and Greece.

Five battleships of the Pacific Squadron passed Carmel bay Tuesday night about ten o'clock on their way to San Francisco where they will be inspected by the Shriners.

Building of Soldiers' Memorial Fountain Awaits Your Tribute

Last fall the Carmel Community Club inaugurated a movement to replace the old watering trough at the head of Ocean Avenue by a fountain of appropriate and artistic design. A committee was appointed to take charge of the work. About that time Dr. Charles A. McCollom, chairman of the committee, read in the Pine Cone a communication signed "Ex-Soldier," in which the writer suggested that a soldier memorial be erected on the site of the trough, and that the laying of the corner stone be included in the Armistice Day ceremonies.

The Doctor was greatly interested in the letter and learned that Argyll Campbell was the writer. The good doctor was mightily pleased with the suggestion, and as a result the Community Club started a movement toward the building of such a memorial and contributed $85 to the fund.

With the assistance of a large number of Carmelites, Mr. Campbell put on a vaudeville show which was given in two halls on the night of November 11th, and which netted $322.86; with four dollars privately subscribed, the grand total of the fund was brought up to $411.86.

The personnel of the committee was changed through the resignation of one of its members and the departure from town of another, and it now consists of Dr. Charles A. McCollom, Noah Whitney, C. Sumner Greene and Argyll Campbell. Mr. Greene donated his services in designing the memorial, and some of the actual work has already been done, due to the fact that much of the rock was donated by Messrs. H. A. Russell, Edward Hatton and Fred Wermuth. T. B. Reardon donated labor and plumbing connections, and the Monterey County Water Works the water connections.

It is estimated that the total cost of the memorial will be $1000. The Manzanita Club recently gave a dance which netted $52.

The Pine Cone is asking the people of Carmel and vicinity to see that this memorial "To Those Who Served" is completed without further delay, and to that end has started the fund with a ten dollar donation.

On this page is our Memorial

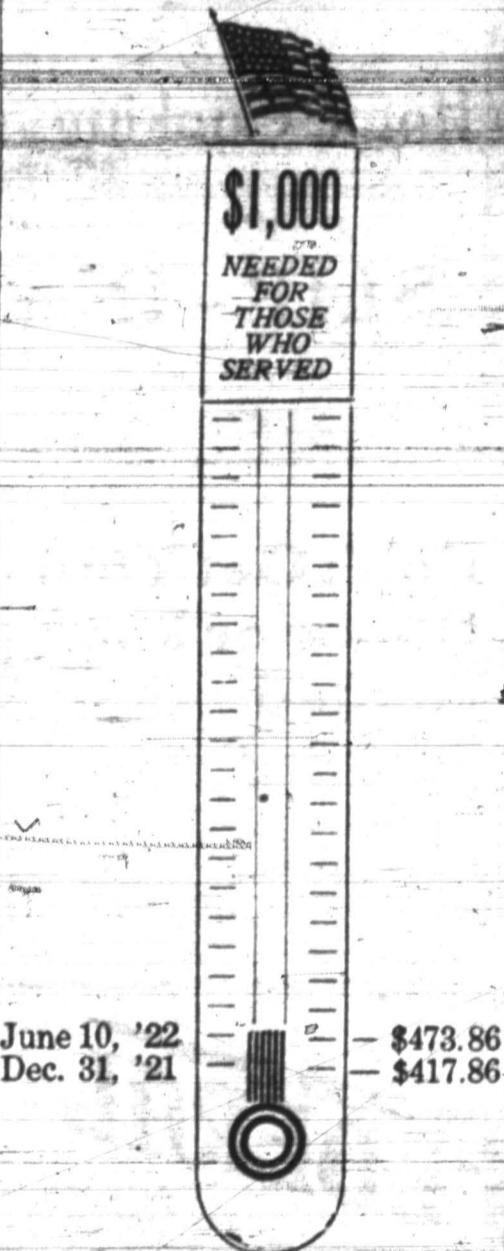

Thermometer. Our readers will be able to watch the temperature rise each week until the goal, $1000, is reached.

Let us see how many degrees it will climb before our next issue.

Make checks payable to Memorial Fountain Committee, and bring them to the Pine Cone office.

NEW ADDITION RECALLS AN EARLY PREDICTION

Editor Pine Cone:

It is a happy coincidence that after reading the announcement in your columns of the forthcoming sale of the beautiful Carmel acreage known as Carmel Woods, I came across a folder issued a good many years ago by Mr. J. F. Devendorf in which he wrote:

"The settlement has been built on the theory that people of esthetic tastes would settle in a town of Carmel's naturally esthetic beauties, provided all public enterprises were addressed toward preventing man and his civilized ways from unnecessarily marring the natural beauty so lavishly displayed here."

"The standard dear to Padre Junipero Serra, when he laid the foundation for modern civilization on the Pacific Coast at this very spot five years before the signing of the Declaration of Independence, has been maintained."

"A demand has now been started for property midst a pine forest, near historic surroundings, with neighbors of genial sympathetic characteristics, devoted to nature and her beauties."

"There is no other territory to supply this demand. The law of supply and demand governs real estate values, as everything else."

"When the Carmel-by-the-Sea lots are in private hands, the additional demand which will come can only be supplied by those who are willing to sell their homes at a profit."

This statement is surely interesting at this time when what Mr. Devendorf wrote has come true—so true that Carmel Woods, as announced, seems the logical last word in the development of our community. It is good to know that Carmel Woods has been laid out by artists to please home-seekers with artistic preoccupations.

A PINE CONE READER.

Address on Missionary Work

Mrs Reed B. Cherrington, for years president of the Woman's Board of the Pacific, will give an address on the Missionary Work of the Congregational church, at the June meeting of the Carmel Missionary society, at the home of Mrs. George F. Beardsley, corner Eighth and Casanova, Wednesday, June 21, 3 p.m. Those interested are most cordially invited.

T. P. J.

As a usual thing the voters, when it comes to electing county officials, have little to enthuse over. But when the most efficient and courteous county clerk of all California's fifty-eight counties announces that he will be a candidate for re-election, we really have something to be joyful about. Tom Joy should be elected at the Primary without opposition.

E. Forman McLean has joined the Carnegie Institute corps for the summer. He is a botanist of note and spent some time in the Philippines prior to coming to California. At one time he was head of the botanical department of an eastern university.

COMMITS CRIME
INADVERTENTLY

Messrs. Pine & Cone:

While approaching along street by name Alvarado in my Autumn-bile a few days before yesterday with recklessness of nearly four miles per (1) one hour. I arrive at spacious width formerly old plaza. Here I sustain slight impediment caused by shrillness of whistle of youngish gent who hasten up to me with blanks in hand which he offer. Am I interfering with speed limits, your Honor? I politely request. Not so! Why you ignore Button which I placed 8 feet from curb stone? I like all south bound traffics to proceed between same while other traffics may squeeze through gap of 192 feet on other side. Are rear end of machinery which hop out of curb stone in front of me of any importance? I suggestively require.

Such technicalities may only be divulge by Judge which you will visit. At some day later on arrival he seem interested to know why favored with this formal call which I report are to please his sagacious assistant who presented yellowish blank, of which he has plenty, plainly explaining crime. In that case, I will appreciate a donation to this pile of coins which grows quite rapidly hence when done I proceed forward in order I may avoid annoying Hon. buttons and giving Mont. Rey. wide berth in future. Hoping you are the same.

Very respectfully,

REFUSED TO HURT BABIES

Two Stories That Prove Gentleness of Horses Where Little Children Were Concerned.

Are horses peculiarly gentle with babies? It seems a fair question. Certainly the horses in this account, which a contributor sends us, were almost humanly solicitous of the welfare, of the two young children who came into contact with them.

Our neighbor, says our contributor, had a field one corner of which came up to his dooryard. One day while he was plowing he stopped when he reached the corner and, leaving the horses standing in the furrow, went to the pump for a drink. As soon as he returned he took up the plow handles and spoke to the horses. They did not move. He spoke again, sharply. Still they did not move. Astonished and vexed, he struck them with the whip. Still they stood immovable; and then he realized that something must be wrong. He went to their heads, and there in the furrow in front of them he saw his toddling baby boy!

The two-year-old daughter of a friend of mine in Denver had an experience a good deal more astonishing than that of the baby boy's. The little girl managed to stray away from in front of the house where she had been playing. There was a long search in which the police and the fire department joined; but it was unsuccessful. Finally, in a livery stable two miles away some men who were working there thought they heard a little cooing voice. They were horrified, for it seemed to come from the stall of an exceedingly vicious horse that even the grooms approached cautiously and with dread. The men looked into the stall and saw the baby patting the horse's hind leg and calling him "nice horse," while he, with his head turned, watched her benignantly, not moving a muscle lest he should hurt her!—Youth's Companion.

TESTS VIGOR OF BANK ROLLS

Majority Wither Quickly, but Some Grow Robust When Exposed to New York's Climate.

New York has long been known in the provinces as the nesting place of bank rolls. In this nest either they grow or they die young. A bank roll is a ~~prosperous plant~~ being influenced quickly and permanently by climatic and diplomatic changes. Nothing can become discouraged more quickly than a bank roll in New York, and nothing can gain a satisfied and prosperous maturity more quickly if it gets the right start, attends to its own business and keeps away from strangers.

Generally speaking, I would recommend this town as the best health resort for bank rolls in the world. Some bank rolls come here in the full view of perfect health, with perfectly normal chest measurements and waistlines suited to their age, and immediately go into a decline which no science is able to stem. They seem to be victims of the old-fashioned disease known as galloping consumption.

Others come here in a very frail state of health, puny in fact, and by judicious exercise take on weight and require larger and larger belts. Circumstances alter bank rolls.—Roy K. Moulton, in the New York Mail.

CITY WILL HONOR FOUNDER

Rio de Janeiro to Scott to honor Estacio de Sa, Regarded as First Settler.

One of the landmarks of Rio de Janeiro has been a hill about 300 feet high in the heart of the city, called the "Morro de Castello." A chapel crowned the top, and there was the tomb of Estacio de Sa, who with his brother, Salvador de Sa, shares the title of founder of the city. Salvador was drowned at sea, so only Estacio could be entombed. Nearby the chapel on the hill was a stone something like a milestone, bearing the date 1567, and called the foundation stone.

On January 20 Rio de Janeiro celebrated the three hundred and fifty-fifth anniversary of its founding. As it had been decided to raze the hill and so make available valuable land, on that day the ashes of Estacio were taken from their long-time resting place and carried in an army wagon to the monastery of the Capuchins at the beginning of the ascent of the mountain. The other wagon was the foundation stone, followed by a long procession composed chiefly of Roman Catholic religious bodies.

After the ground where the hill was is properly prepared a monument to commemorate the founding of the city will be erected in the same place, and the remains of the founder and the foundation stone will be put there.

OUTDOES RAVEN OF FICTION

New York Bird Believed to Be the Champion Talker of the Feathered Tribe.

Meet a rare bird from Australia! He is coal black, with white china eyes, a wicked laugh and a trick dance that he does in his cage on top of the ice box in a Bronx park tea room. He sits there next to the root beer barrel and is willing, say his managers, to challenge all birdland to a talking match, according to the New York Sun. When it comes to quoting short and pithy phrases Poe's raven, with his "Nevermore" recitative, was merely an also ran.

This bird doesn't know how he got here. He remembers being somewhere out in the suburbs of Sydney on a summer night. Then he was trapped and out on the high seas before he knew what was happening.

Now he lives in Bronx park and never a bird in a gilded cage has as fine a line of patter as this old raven. Perhaps he is segregated so he will not teach the whole parrot house to jeer at Sunday afternoon visitors. He can talk in a rich, deep barytone voice such as never belonged to a parrot and can interpose intervals of falsetto. At the end of every speech he hops down and does a double shuffle dance. Then he laughs at the audience.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE
XXVII.—FLORIDA

FLORIDA was considered America's first health resort. It was the search for a mythical Fountain of Perpetual Youth that led Ponce de Leon, the Spanish explorer, to land near the present site of St. Augustine. His rediscovery of Florida in 1513 was on Easter Sunday, hence the name, which is from Pascua Florida or Flowery Passover, which is the Spanish for Easter Sunday.

The French were the next settlers, founding a colony on the St. John's river. Spain promptly took action to maintain her ownership of this region and sent over an expedition which erected a fort under the leadership of Menendez at St. Augustine in 1565 and exterminated the Huguenot colony. St. Augustine is the oldest city in the United States. There followed a period of hostility between the English colonists in the Carolinas and the Spanish in Florida. By the treaty of 1763 Spain ceded Florida to England in exchange for Havana, which England had captured a few years previous. It remained an English colony until the last years of the Revolution when Spain recaptured it.

There were two provinces, East and West Florida. As the Spanish ruled Florida with a very loose form of government, this region became the refuge of pirates, smugglers and lawless characters. Such an element together with the unruly Seminole Indians naturally caused a great deal of trouble. To overcome this, President Monroe purchased Florida from Spain in 1819 for $5,000,000 or about eleven cents an acre. It was organized into a territory and in 1845 was admitted to the Union.

Florida is sometimes called the Everglade State on account of the vast swamp-land in its southern part. It is also known as the Peninsula State and is the southernmost State of the Union. Its area is 58,600 square miles. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

CARMEL WRITERS IN CURRENT PERIODICALS

Thaddeus Fairbanks of that State made a weighing machine in the Year 1831.

The origin of weighing things dates back so far that the name of the inventor is unknown, observes the Brooklyn Eagle. When a man reached the stage in civilization where he ceased to depend upon his own efforts for his livelihood and began trading with his fellows he was confronted with the need of weighing things in order to determine the actual weight of whatever he traded in.

The trade of the world developed by leaps and bounds over hundreds of years, but we did not have scales until about 1831, when Thaddeus Fairbanks of Vermont made and patented the first one. Before that time weighing of heavy loads was done by a crude method. When weighing a load of hay the wagon with the hay was suspended on a huge steelyard, originally fashioned during the days of ancient Rome. Fairbanks' first scale was in its essential principles the same as are the scales of today, and its success quickly spread over the world. Orders poured in from every direction, for his scales were not only more convenient than the old method of hoisting the object to be weighed on a steelyard but they were also more accurate. With the steelyard, the actual weight might be ascertained within fifty pounds, whereas today, on scales capable of weighing 300,000 pounds, the weight can be determined within the smallest fraction of an ounce.

This organization is dedicated to conserve the leisure time of the people and to make a better nation. The promotion of little theaters, community playgrounds, parks and city planning is part of the work. A series of grand operas was recently produced in the stadium in St. Louis under the department's management. Mr. Rogers taught at the Lowell High School in San Francisco, and was active in the formation of the Recreation League and of the Columbia Park Boys' Club. He has identified himself to quite an extent with the life of Carmel and Carmelites, and has taken an interest in our ~~university~~. He notes that Carmel is in a flourishing condition and prophesies a great future.

Miss Sara Huntsman, instructor of English literature and dramatic art in the University of California, is spending part of her vacation in Carmel. She produced the annual "Parthenia" on the university campus this year. Previous to coming to the University of California she held a similar position in the University of Utah. Miss Huntsman has been a regular visitor here, having spent seven summer vacations in Carmel. She is a particular friend of the G. F. Beardsley.

Chris Jorgensen, noted landscape painter, who left Carmel last Thursday, after a two weeks' stay, found, on returning to his Piedmont home, that he had been robbed of twenty-five of his finest sketches. Desiring to show a friend one of his Semite sketches, he found that in his absence not only had he been relieved of his Yosemite sketches, but of several other California and European sketches. The pictures are valued at $5000.

Mrs. Mary L. Savory of Fresno paid this city a visit last Friday. For several years she was instructor in dramatic art at the University of Oregon. She is now working in that line in lodges and societies in Fresno. She is desirous of starting a Forest Theatre, similar in scope to ours, in General Grant National Park, about seventy miles from Fresno. She came to Carmel to investigate the Forest Theatre and learn something of its history, character of plays and of its general possibilities.

Charles McMorris Purdy, now here, is an actor of much promise. He played a prominent role in "The Piper" at Long Beach some years ago, under the direction of Perry Newberry, and recently took part in the Shakespearian revivals held in the East. These are probably the best American amateur Shakespearian productions ever made. Mr. Purdy has also done some professional work in New York City.

Polished Shoes Once Decried. Polished shoes were for a long time looked upon as a sure sign of effeminate in men, and were often even ridiculed, says London Answers.

Therefore, "mock me all over, from my flat cap unto my shining shoes," became almost proverbial.

Shoe ornamentation of any kind came to us from France. It was of a Frenchified Englishman that Ben Jonson wrote in his famous satire: "Would you believe that so much scarf of France, of hat, and feather, and shoe, and tie, and garter, should come hither?"

Now let us look at the other extremity. Powder for the hair was first introduced into England early in the seventeenth century, and became immediately the mock of the dramatists, and was severely censured by the Puritans.

The fashion became very popular about 1795, when a tax of 1 guinea per annum was levied on every person who wore their hair powdered. The hair-powder duty for the first year was estimated at £250,000 ($1,250,000).

Warike African Tribe.

The Masai are the most arrogant and warlike tribe of all the native tribes of Africa and, man for man, they are possibly the wealthiest people in the world. Their wealth has been acquired by waging ruthless war on all the other tribes in the vicinity and appropriating their worldly goods, which are chiefly in the form of huge herds. But, with all their warlike tendencies, they have never risen against the white man. Scarcely 50,000 in number, they held sway for generations over millions of their more peaceful neighbors.

The Masai are the exact reverse of vegetarians, for they live on nothing but meat, considering everything grown in the earth as despicable food, fit for monkeys, but not for men. Their favorite drink is secured by tapping the large vein in the neck of an ox and drawing off a quantity of his blood, which is sometimes drunk mixed with milk and sometimes "straight." The ox is also their chief food.

REVIEW OF BOOKS IN CARMEL LIBRARY

By Ann Burroughs

A NEW VOLUME BY EDNA ST. VINCENT MILLAY

An Oregonian connoisseur recently opined—we heard him—that the verse of Edna St. Vincent Millay is not known in the West as yet. But the bookstores of San Francisco tell of a public that clamored to possess "Second April" as soon as it appeared. To certain critics, this volume, anticipated since the "Renascence and other Poems" of 1917, is a disappointment. If these critics were looking for a more poignant lyricism than they found in "Ashes of Life", for instance, of that volume, for greater imaginative intensity than that of its title poem, for a whimsical delicacy superior to that of "Tavern", they deserved their disappointment. They would have been more truly appreciative and at the same time in the way of having their expectancy rewarded had their half of the second volume been a "what-has-been-done-once-can-be-done-again".

Flag in the Bog", "The Poet and his Book", "The Ode to Silence" prompted by an energy that doubles and redoubles almost miraculously, the achieved cumulative emotional intensity dictating the rhythm till we feel—but not perhaps until we remember in tranquillity—that here is something truly organic. Surely there is no sign here of the mechanism so obvious on most pages of American anthologies. They live and grow.

The poems long in line-length only, are no more perfect than are the shorter poems in their way. Their way has already been marked by the critics whose watchwords in regard to it are "poignancy", "sudden piercing felicity", "the sense of lacrimae rerum", of the "intolerability of beauty". "I am waylaid by Beauty", our poet sings in eight lines which celebrate a certain quality of the hour of dusk.

"I am waylaid by Beauty. Who will walk Between me and the crying of the frogs?"

This is a bit of imagery that lives up to its title: it "assaults" the imagination.

The closing poem, "Wild Swans", does this also. It is impressively its author's own for this and for other reasons that the Millay lover will quickly recognize:

WILD SWANS

"I looked in my heart as the wild swans went over.
What did I see I had not seen before?
Only a question less or a question more.
Nothing to match the flight of wild birds' flying.
Trailing heart forever lifting and flying,
House without air. I leave you and lock your door.
Wild swans, come over the town, come over
The town again, trailing your legs and crying."

Few poems so truly recreate the recalled experience. This succeeds in invoking the wild swan over the town again. And perhaps no higher tribute can be paid the book than to assert as a truth that to read it is to find in one's heart something "to match the flight of wild birds' flying."

In the face of such an absurdity as the way the same superlatives are applied to this and that volume by virtue—we often see no other—of its being fresh from the press, we shall venture to add another to the collection of Miss Millay has, and deservedly sometimes we think, received. Although she attempts nothing of epic proportions, we would suggest that when Mr. John Drinkwater recently drew up his definition of the lyric as "the pure poetic energy unfused with other energies", he could not have found a better illustration—in America at any rate, than the poetry of Edna St. Vincent Millay.

A SWEDISH NOVEL

"Guest, the One-Eyed" of Gunnar Gunnarsson is a tale of Iceland, written by a talented Swedish novelist. The stage of the novel is placed in an heroic setting for heroic adventure. The scene of the greater part of the action is a rambling rural community on the edge of deep fjords backed by unscaleable peaks. The inhabitants of the district are farmers. There are two heroes, Guest, the One-Eyed, and his brother, both sons of the farmer—King of Borg, the former a clergyman and a wanderer; the latter, a concert violinist, an entrepreneur, and inheritor of his father's estate and position and husband of his brother's deserted mistress.

The plot centers about the regeneration of the fallen clergyman later called Guest, the One-Eyed. Tempted in his youth by a covetousness of his father's estate and prestige, he spared neither pains nor patience to undermine his father's influence and good name. At the climax of his schemes his plan fails but not without killing his father and maddening his wife. Shocked by the devastation he has wrought, the young clergyman faces the blackness of his soul. The rest of his life is spent in a lonely wandering and charity in search of a complete forgiveness for his sins which alone can give him peace. The novel ends with a fulfillment of his quest.

Such a plot might easily render a novel mere claptrap. At no moment, however, in "Guest, the One-Eyed" does Gunnarsson fail to maintain a high level of seriousness and dignity. The task of the clergyman is achieved with true heroism through twenty years of stern endeavor. One admires Gunnarsson's control of his medium and his care and success in presenting his background of persons and place.

IOWA SWINGS INTO LINE

First Indiana, then Pennsylvania, and now Iowa, have repudiated the political machine, and by so doing the people have given notice that they desire definite and conclusive action on the soldier bonus, the tariff, the American merchant marine, etc. There has been too much talk and not enough remedial legislation.

THE GROWING PENINSULA

In Carmel, Pacific Grove, Monterey and at the Highlands, splendid tracts of land are being subdivided and put upon the market. It is noteworthy that in no instance are boom methods being resorted to to make sales. Nor are such methods necessary where, as in this instance, there is a genuine and growing demand for home sites.

BEWARE THIS PROPOSITION

Although it is more than five months before the general election, the people throughout the state are awakening to the dangers of the so-called Water and Power Act. Says the Orland Register:

"The proposed water and power bond issue would saddle California with a $500,000,000 bond issue as a beginner and increase the job holders, subject to the will of the governor, at least three-fold. The power of the governor of California, should the act become a law, would make the old S. P. machine look like a kiddie car."

EMINENT ARTIST TO RESIDE HERE

An interesting newcomer to Carmel is H. Ellsworth Bassett, painter, musician, composer. Mr. Bassett is doing a three panel triplet for Margaret Stewart for her Carmel home out on the Point. This piece of work has been passed on and accepted by a jury consisting of Lee Randolph of the institution known in former years as the Hopkins Art Institute, George McCrae, architect, and Mark Daniels, supervising architect and landscape engineer of the Del Monte Properties Co. Mr. Bassett is also engaged on some mural decorations for Miss Stewart which are to be incorporated in her Carmel residence.

As a portrait painter also Mr. Bassett has won distinction. Among the notables which he has painted are Lady Minto, wife of the Governor-General of Canada, when she was at Newport a few years ago; also Lillian Russell, Clyde Fitch and John Jacob Astor.

An interesting angle to Mr. Bassett's art is his work in harmonizing the color of his pictures with the color secured by musical vibration. He catches his harmony from the piano and reproduces the colors which they give upon his canvas. This gives him a technique that helps in working out his inspirations. While this method is not generally known, some of our leading artists and scientists are recognizing the value of correlation between color and sound vibration; among them Maratta, known in the east as one of the greatest color men. Mr. Bassett states that many of our great artists, such as MacDowell, the composer, have felt this relation between music and color, but have not consciously used it.

H. Ellsworth Bassett is a well-known figure in the world of artists, and his coming here will mean additional fame for Carmel as an art center. He has been spending some time with Mark Daniels at Pebble Beach, but has now come to Carmel with the intention of locating and building a studio.

Savage Tribes Revered the Cross.

From the early days of the church the cross was a usual emblem of Christian faith and hope. The first Christians showed great respect for its significance, with St. Paul "glorying in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ." They used the gestural sign of the cross extensively. Tertullian wrote in the Second century: "At every step and movement, when we go in or out, when we dress or put on our shoes, at the bath, at the table, when the lights are brought, when we go to bed, when we sit down, whatever it is that occupies us, we mark the forehead with the sign of the cross."

Even before the Christian era the cross was an object of religious veneration among savage tribes. The death of Christ gave it a new meaning.

Fishermen Use Colored Nets.

In Dalmatia it has been noticed that the fishermen dye their nets in wonderful shades of brown and bright green. They have found by experience that while the fish are canny enough to fear the white nets and flee from them as from a danger signal, they swim calmly into the meshes of the green and brown ones.

It seems possible that this is because the green and brown strands of the nets are not unlike the floating strands of seaweed. Another explanation is that the eye of the fish is unable to distinguish these two colors from that of the sea water.

These dyes are extracted from the bruised barks of plants. After the nets have been well soaked in these natural dyes and then thoroughly dried, the colors are found to be fast both as regards water and sunlight.

Vagrant Impressions of The Pine Nut

In a sequestered spot in a Pine Forest, far from the thoughts of traffic cops, screeching jazz orchestras and Grand Opera singers, and overlooking the blue Pacific, lies the little village of Carmel. The casual visitor, if he be of philosophic mind, on rounding the last turn on the approach to the village will speculate on the reasons for its early settlement. If he remains a week and if he understands the lure of the silent places for those who have genius, he will no longer wonder. Perhaps the world has hurt him and the sore spot needs the balm and healing and companionship furnished by the trees and the sea. Some who remain and find it take a long time for the healing, and they are wary and suspicious of human kindness, and the poison of their wounds is exposed to all with whom they come in contact. The female of the Carmel species is more deadly than the male, possibly because the former are the more easily knocked down by the world's circumstance, and they run away from the petty distractions and confusions of the outside and try to find themselves and to get a new perspective of life in the little village. An army of "misunderstands" knocks constantly at its gates—and they generally continue to "knock" a long time after they enter. Sometimes the retrospection induced by the drifting fog and the melancholy undertone of the sea leads to too much introspection, which very often develops into plain unvarnished selfishness.

In this last class came Madame Pip Van Wrinkle. She was bitter-tongued, cynical, fault-finding. Her pessimistic outlook on life had put harsh notes in her voice, and downward-turning wrinkles at the corners of her eyes. She was an ungenerous critic of people and events—stated plainly, a pest. The business people sighed as she approached and her few acquaintances refused to open the door to her summons. The queer part of it all was that many times had her criticisms been tinged with some real human sympathy, they would have had much value, for her perceptions were keen, direct and logical. In a constant effort to excuse herself to herself for her shortcomings, she went full-tilt into all new "isms". She reveled in metaphysical healing (with frequent trips to the nearest medico for prescriptions.) She was "psyched" "treated", and analyzed until she became more and more obsessed with her own ego.

On a warm spring day in 1922, Madame Van Wrinkle sitting in her open doorway heard the buzz of her neighbor's tea party and wave after wave of self-pity flooded her. She always spent a long time being sorry for herself when she was left out of any social gathering. She decided to take a walk.

"Guess I'll go up to the Forest Theater rehearsal," she mused. This will show you that she was also the town's buttinsky. She armed herself with a copy of Freud and set out.

Her way lay through the town and across San Carlos. Glancing scornfully at the Soldiers' Memorial as she passed, she said to herself:

"If they must spend money on such things, and if they want to do all that fool decorating, why don't they clean up the rubbish after it is all over?"

She tripped over a loose board on the wood sidewalk across the gully, and ejaculated:

"Why don't the people in Carmel ever really do things, instead of talking about them so much! There's the street improvement, and that old Memorial, and these terrible dangerous steps, and over there is the Country Club grounds. I wonder how that matter stands. And then there is the Little Theater. If they'd let me run some of these things, I'd just show them."

So thinking, she sauntered into one of the paths that led deeper into the forest. A soft bed of pine needles tempted her to relaxation, and she sank down, sleep hanging heavy over her eyes. When she opened them again it was night. A full moon was doing patrol over the tree tops, the trees themselves casting shadows that moved and twisted and changed before her sleep-befogged vision. There was magic in the air. She began to see shapes in the tree trunks, in the misshapen rocks at the side of the road and at last became aware of a nebulous, cloudlike effect in the sky which seemed gradually to take on the semblance of a human being. It floated nearer and was soon followed by another which might have come out of the Milky Way itself. As the shapes reached the ground, they slowly resolved themselves into the figures of men. They wore soldiers' apparel.

Madam Pip held her breath. The experience was, to say the least, unusual, and she waited for developments. A resonant voice broke the stillness.

"Well, here we are. Pretty quick time, I'll say. I stopped on my way, too, at that new star we found the other day."

The lady gave herself a large-sized pinch which convinced her that she wasn't dreaming. The other one spoke, rather grumbly.

"I'm so darned interested these days in that new appliance of mine for broadcasting mental vibrations that I didn't want to spare the time to come back here tonight, but all these thoughts of us—people calling us dead and feeling so sorry for us—I just have to come whether I want to or not. I wish they'd stop this building memorials and all that. Don't you, Jim?"

"Why, I don't know, Jack. The material things they make in this earth life are just symbols of what's in their hearts, and until they can get the real love thought across—as you and I did, Jack, when we gave everything we had—it's all right I guess, to go on making things to stand for what they think."

"Well, then, why in Heck, don't they finish that thing down town there. If they've set themselves something to do why don't they go on and do it?"

This was too much for Mistress Van Wrinkle.

"They might at least take off those wilted flowers," she snapped. The

MONTEREY UNION HIGH SCHOOL

MONTEREY, CAL.

June 5, 1922.

Mr. Taxpayer:

ON JUNE 21st there is to be a special election on the question of issuing bonds to meet the costs of enlarging and improving the present Monterey Union High School building. The proposed improvements are badly needed, in fact a necessity, if the next freshman class is to be admitted.

There is a graduating class of fifty-nine coming from the Monterey Grammar School, and the other schools in the district have proportionately large graduating classes. A large percentage of these plan to take a high school course, and they cannot be accommodated in the present building.

The School Board which advocates this bond issue is composed of the following members: The chairman, Carmel Martin, of the law firm of Hudson, Martin & Jorgenson; Wm. T. Kibbler of Carmel and L. D. Lacey of Monterey, both retired ~~capita~~ public-spirited citizens; Judge Rohrback of Pajaro, Justice of the Peace and rancher; and John Scudder, Jr., of Moss Landing, Manager of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company.

These men are all representative citizens and large taxpayers. Knowing the need of the proposed improvements, they have decided a bond issue to be a safer and more expedient way to meet the required expense than a direct tax for several years, which necessarily would be very heavy.

The assessed valuation of Monterey Union High School district is about eleven million dollars. The present high school tax rate is 45c on the hundred dollars. The bonds, which are of $1000 denomination, are to be redeemable, five each year, and paying five per cent. They will make an average increase in the tax rate of 6.5c, for the present assessed value. As an increase in valuation to twenty million dollars within the next twenty years is a safe prediction, the tax rate will be still lower.

Think it over yourself and see if you do not arrive at the same conclusion.

It is true that the High School building is to be in Monterey, but other sections will be cared for. The Prunedale section students will have their transportation and tuition paid to Salinas High School, and the Pajaro and Aromas students to Watsonville.

It is too far to have them come to Monterey High School, but nevertheless they have the advantages of these good schools, at a lower tax rate than if they were in those school districts. If they had their own high school, they could not afford to furnish equipment which would compare with that now offered. Therefore they are better off staying in this district and getting the advantages of those schools.

The Student Body of Monterey Union High School unanimously supports the decision of the School Board on the question of issuing these bonds, and hopes that you believe in it also.

[Signed] THEODORE CRILEY, President.

[Signed] THELMA BRANT, Secretary.

Remember that the election is on June 21, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tell your friends and neighbors also to be sure and vote YES.

boys looked at her quickly.

"Why don't YOU do it then?" said Jim.

"I didn't put them on. Let those who did, take them off."

Jim winked at Jack good naturedly.

"Now, isn't that just like these earth people. They start monuments to us who don't need them or who don't want them, but they won't finish them up or even keep them clean for each other. Somebody suggests a memorial and everybody gets excited and they take up a subscription. But the point of it is that it becomes a real man-sized job to go on and smear it through, after all the excitement dies out."

He made a roguish bow to Mrs. Pip. "Why don't you do something yourself instead of always kicking about the other fellow? Even if you didn't decorate the memorial, it wouldn't hurt you to do your 'bit' by cleaning it up a little afterward."

The lady fairly faltered. In fact, for once in her life she was speechless.

"Oh, I know how it is," he laughed. "They do the same thing all around down here. They wait for 'George' to do it. Now listen! If you people'll get busy and finish this thing up, we'll be free from these earth conditions and will be able to go about our own business, which is having a perfectly good time and enjoying life up on that star you see twinkling over the nearest tree."

He leaned over Mrs. Pip. His eyes were shining with good nature and he shook his finger at her in mock disapproval.

"You tell that Committee that they can't do that Memorial alone. It belongs to the whole town and everybody should take a hand in it. The thing for them to do is to pass the job up to the people and show them that they mustn't start anything they can't finish."

Jack broke in: "How about the job we undertook to do for you? Didn't we finish it up? Yours isn't half so hard as ours was—but you people take it out in talk. You don't do much." He grinned boyishly. "If you could hear the things folks say when they come into the town about all the things that Carmel plans and how little it accomplishes, you'd get up some spunk."

By this time Mrs. Pip, who had vainly struggled to get in a word, finally succeeded. "It's all that Committee's fault. They are the ones to blame."

"Now, there you go again. Blame the other fellow. Half of you sit around and plan and do nothing and the other half sit around and criticize and do nothing—and yet at heart you're the best people on earth." Jim laughed outright. For Heaven's sake, if you must build memorials, finish them, at least before you get into another war. We're going to leave you now. Think it all over, dear Madame. Come on, Jack, I'll race you around Mars on the way back."

Jim poked his friend playfully in the ribs, and Mrs. Pip Van Wrinkle watched a couple of little white fleecy clouds float up into the sky starward. She reflected. "I wonder if they weren't really taking some slams at that Memorial committee," and she drifted off again into a gentle slumber.

On waking, she found herself under the pine tree from whence she had viewed the scene of the night before. She felt stiff, cramped, as if she were held by invisible hands. Slowly she brushed away the foliage that covered her, then stretched and untangled her feet from her hair that she had worn bobbed when she went to sleep the afternoon before. It had grown and formed a net around her. She made a move to recover her handbag and her book, but her hands encountered a heap of disintegrated fragments. She began to doubt her sanity. Her joints creaked as she rose and started to hobble down the hill. As she approached the town, she heard a violent cheering. Soon she made out a large group of people gathered on Ocean Avenue. She could see no one that she knew in the crowd, who all looked at her strangely. Finally, Madame

Van Wrinkle recognized the bent figure of an old man who had just finished making a speech and had dismounted from a platform in the middle of the street.

"Hey, Mr. Kibbler." Her voice was hoarse and aged. "What's happened to you and to everybody—to the whole town," she said wildly. "Everybody and everything looks different. Everything's changed but you."

"Excuse me, Madame, but I don't know what you are talking about. We have just met to celebrate the completion of our Ocean Avenue paving, which we have been working on for twenty years." He quavered. "Yes, we started it back in the year 1922 and this is 1943. You appear to be a stranger in these parts."

Mrs. Pip moaned. "Does no one around here remember Pip Van Wrinkle?"

Kibbler kibbled at her curiously. "Why, now I begin to remember you. I think I talked to you one day for an hour about the Booster Pump."

He drew himself up rather arrogantly.

"If you've been away all that time, Madame, I'll have to tell you that we've gone so far in metaphysics that we are now able to tell in an instant just what each one is thinking. So we always tell the Truth. It's no use to do anything else. I just caught the thought wave from you that you are still antagonistic to everything to be done around here of a constructive nature. If it hadn't been for your kind, it wouldn't have taken us twenty years to pave this street and we'd have had the Little Theater started by now. In fact, you're a hard-shelled, stubborn, old-cat. Good day, Madame Van Wrinkle." And Bill stepped into the crowd to receive his congratulations on his speech.

The lady slunk away. The jam was so great that she couldn't get further down the street so she retraced her steps to the Garage. She sank into a chair that young Comings, Jr., placed for her and murmured:

"You've made a right good-looking thing out of that Memorial what with all of those shrubs and bright colored flowers and vines, and those pretty little paths—but they've covered up the monument so's it can't be seen."

The young man replied politely.

"The Memorial was begun and the platform built, and every year the decorations were left so long that they finally took root at the base and began to grow. That path was worn by Argyll Campbell, who makes a patriotic address every Armistice Day, Fourth of July and Decoration Day. The people all like it better now than they would like the completed thing. You know this way it doesn't take any time or trouble. Mrs. Otey comes over and takes care of the flowers and keeps the beds weeded, etc., and everybody is glad that any one will put themselves out enough to do it."

By this time the crowd was dispersing down Ocean Avenue and Mrs. Pip made her way sadly on. She found that in spite of the anti-improvement act of 1923, the town had progressed. Herbert Hand was carrying his laundry by aeroplane; Bob Leidig was sweeping the streets with an enlarged Hoover, which bore the same old legend: "It Beats—as it Sweeps—as it Cleans". When she began to read the newspapers, she was amazed to find that we had spanked Japan, Americanized China and that the Soldiers' Bonus Bill had been passed.

She slipped back into her place in the life of the town, but found it hard to keep pace with the people around her who were up and coming. Often she thought of her soldier boys and wondered what it was all about that moonlight night in the hills. But the saddest moments of her life were spent in regretting that she had never made an impress on the town except that she was antagonistic to Bill Kibbler's Booster Pump.

Real Home Industry

One of the most used expressions is "Home Industry." What does it mean? Listen to this:

In 1904 J. W. Hand took over the agency of the Del Monte Laundry for Carmel. The residents then depended, like the pioneers of '49, upon Chinamen to do their wash. Joe Hand looked way ahead. He gave service—first by freight wagon, one-horse delivery wagon and two-horse vehicle, then by automobile—until he was finally able to give a regular CITY LAUNDRY SERVICE.

What about this for Home Industry?

Meanwhile, the laundry itself grew with the spirit of the agents. It does not and never has, failed to support them with good, first-class work, immediate attention to the wants of the patrons and quick adjustment of all righteous claims.

Pebble Beach Notes

Plans for an elementary school at Pebble Beach have been completed and will be submitted for bids shortly. The design was worked up by B. R. Maybeck. Maybeck is well known as the architect who designed the Palace of Fine Arts at the Exposition in 1915 and who also worked out the color scheme for the Exposition. It is planned to take care of both physical and mental development of the children. In addition to the regular class instruction certain afternoons will be devoted to instruction in swimming, golf, horseback riding and walks. The school will have advanced courses in Del Monte Properties Company's golf, swimming, tennis and riding instructors.

Among the recent purchasers of home sites at Pebble Beach are Mrs. Samuel Knight of San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Brendan Quin of New York, Talbert Josselyn of Carmel, Shirley Ward of Los Angeles, Mr. Arthur Hately of Oakland, Thomas Baxter of Stockton, Leonard W. Perry of Canada, Mrs. Spens Black of Oakland, and Dr. O. E. Miller of Chicago and Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Ritchie have purchased a home-site at Pebble Beach near the golf links and are planning to build this fall. Robert Ritchie is the author of many widely read novels, among them "The Trail of Two Moons". He was also one of the foremost American correspondents during the World War. Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie will be a delightful addition to the Pebble Beach colony.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Thomas have broken ground for the remodeling of their home, fronting on the 2nd fairway of the golf links. The main house is to be entirely done over and will be finished with tile and stucco exterior. An additional guest house is being built, slightly separated from the main house and is connected by a covered-pergola. Mark Daniels has laid out the four acres of land in a beautiful garden scheme. All of these improvements will unquestionably make the Thomas home one of the most beautiful and interesting in the Pebble Beach area.

Mark Daniels is completing an addition to his attractive Pebble Beach home. The new wing was necessitated by Mark's recent plunge into the matrimonial sea.

Mr. and Mrs. Byington Ford are building an attractive home, fronting on the 2nd green of the Pebble Beach golf links. The home was designed by Mr. B. R. Maybeck and is to be of tile and stucco construction. They plan to occupy their new home in August.

Colonel and Mrs. John Hudson Poole are adding extensively to their Pebble Beach home. The wings of the house have been carried around to form a centre court. The additions were designed by Louis Hobart who was the architect for the original house.

Mr. A. J. MacLean has completed his plans for the erection of a rustic stone and redwood home on the Ocean, fronting near Midway Point.

Mr. and Mrs. John V. Ritenhouse have added a wing to their home on Sunset Point at Pebble Beach. Jack divides his time between chasing the white pellet over the Pebble Beach golf links and hoeing weeds in his garden. It is hard to tell which is his main hobby.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kelly with their three children, of Chicago, have rented the Pixley place at Pebble Beach for the Summer.

The remodelling and improving of the Pebble Beach golf course has been strenuously carried on during the past Winter. One of the most noticeable improvements is the lengthening of the 18th hole and the rebuilding of the 18th green in front of Del Monte Lodge. This hole in its present form will make a truly wonderful finish for a golf course which is already world famous.

When you go away, have the Pine Cone sent to you. You'll enjoy it.

Sidelights on a Trip Abroad

When Mrs. Rose DeVoe started on her European trip Mr. Devendorf, in bidding her good bye, said:

"Well, so long, Rose. If you see anything over there good in subdivisions, just cable me and I'll go right over and start something."

Mrs. DeVoe, in speaking of her trip, said that when she saw the sea of Galilee, completely surrounded with beautiful sloping hills and covered with trees on all sides, she was tempted to cable J. F. D.:

"Found just the thing for your subdivision. Come at once."

We asked the lady to give us some of the high lights of her trip. She said: "The mystery and wonder of Egypt made a great appeal to me. Cairo is a wonderful city. I shall never forget the day we went up the Nile to Luxor, past the Garden of Allah, and to the tomb of Rameses. Most of the mummies have been taken away, but Rameses II is still there, in a room lately excavated. The tombs are found in the base of the hills, and are supposed to have been built 4000 years ago."

Mrs. DeVoe spoke of the Pantheon of Rome, where she heard some wonderful vocal music, without accompaniment. Then there was the opera house in Rome, where Mascagni gave his second presentation of his own latest opera. Mrs. DeVoe and her party visited the battle grounds, going as far as the famous Hindenberg line. She was particularly enthusiastic about the Cathedral at Rheims and the reconstruction of it that is now taking place.

At the Lisbon Pantheon, where the rulers for years lie in state, Mrs. DeVoe saw the Emperor Carlos, who, with the youngest son, was assassinated several years back. On the casket of the king was the ribbon and the faded wreath of flowers, also the card, which was sent by President Wilson at that time.

Mrs. DeVoe's trip was one long to be remembered, but she is glad to be at home again, and surrounded by her friends once more.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

At any rate, when he becomes a jailbird the burglar is no longer a robin.

Many a fellow lives by his wits who has never developed a keen sense of humor.

Even in these abbreviated days we have yet to hear of the clocks striking for shorter hours.

The average man is quite willing to bear another fellow's burden if he can carry it on the hip.

Give a man a free foot and he can do almost as much kicking as a woman who is tongue-tied.

Life is kaleidoscopic; a crazy quilt. Still, when we patch up a quarrel we begin to mend our ways.

Mermaids Meet at Del Monte

The Pacific Association of the A. A. U. has drawn up a tentative program of events for the three day Girl's Swimming Carnival which will start at Del Monte on Friday, June 23, and will last three days. The outstanding features will be the holding of the P. A. 50-yard senior championship and the diving championship.

It is planned to invite ten or twelve of the best known girl swimmers in this locality to participate in the program. The preliminary events will be run off the first two days in the picturesque Roman Plunge at Del Monte. The finals are to take place on Sunday afternoon, June 25, in the Del

Monte enclosed beach bath house. The girls swimming carnival at Del Monte has been one of the aquatic features on the Monterey Peninsula for the past four or five years. The events draw large crowds and raise much enthusiasm. This year promises to be especially attractive in that there are a number of girl swimmers showing to good advantage.

Candidate for Superintendent

A FORCEFUL CANDIDATE

James G. Force announces himself a candidate for the office of County Superintendent of Schools of Monterey County. Mr. Force was chosen to fill the vacancy recently caused by the resignation of Mrs. Schultzberg as County Superintendent. He has had a wide experience in school work and is thoroughly acquainted with the problems connected with the latest educational movements.

For many years he has been a member of the Monterey County Board of Education, and at the same time has filled the position of principal of the Soledad Union Grammar School, where he has built up one of the best Union schools in the State. He has . . . . . to be . . . . date at the next election and solicits a fair share of the county vote.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION

An examination for the position of clerk in the Carmel postoffice will be held in this city on July 8, 1922.

Applicants must be citizens of the United States, between the ages of 18 and 45 years on the date of the examination. Age and height and weight requirements are waived in the case of honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines. Applicants must be physically sound and male applicants must be not less than 5 feet 4 inches in height in bare feet and weigh not less than 125 pounds without overcoat or hat.

For application blanks and further information relative to this examination address The Postmaster, Carmel

That Carmel May Grow as Carmel Should, Carmel Woods Is Subdivided

*"Never saw the waves so blue
As in Carmel Bay;
Greenest trees that ever grew,
Vivid sky above it, too—
Seems like God was lookin' through,
Smilin' all the day."*

To meet an urgent need for community expansion recognized by the Trustees and the Planning Commission of Carmel-by-the-Sea, a subdivision of twenty-five acres to be known as Carmel Woods is announced for early sale.

Carmel Woods immediately adjoins the city limits of Carmel-by-the-Sea to the north and northwest. It is a beautiful region of pines and oaks admirably adapted to home-sites.

Carmel Woods makes the ninth addition to Carmel-by-the-Sea in the space of a few years. It will provide 119 building lots to satisfy the many home-seekers who have been unable to purchase property in Carmel-by-the-Sea because the demand has been greater than the supply.

The exacting esthetic requirements of Carmelites and would-be Carmelites have been consulted in the subdivision of Carmel Woods.

The rich, wooded beauty of the acreage has been preserved, and winding roads have been laid out so as to take every advantage of the magnificent contours that give this country its charm.

The wishes of the Trustees and Planning Commission of Carmel having been ascertained, the plans for Carmel Woods were made in sympathy therewith by Mark Daniels, the distinguished landscape engineer who laid out Forest Hill subdivision in San Francisco and Pebble Beach.

Carmel Woods will have 40-foot wide roads, 20 feet surfaced and gravelled. Electricity and water in abundance will be brought to every lot.

The Unit Size of lots in Carmel Woods is 40x100 feet.

There are 48 lots, size 40x100 offered at $350 a piece. Lots of larger sizes include, 11 at $400 a piece, 12 at $700 a piece, 9 at $800 a piece, 15 at $1500 a piece, and 24 at other figures, the variation in these prices being due to variation in size.

Terms of payment are fixed in such a reasonable way that the purchase of a home-site will work no hardship on any home-seeker.

The opening sale will be on July 22 to 23, and will be accompanied by special features to be announced shortly.

Carmel Woods is designed to enable Carmel-by-the-Sea to grow the way Carmelites want it to grow. Also to attract to Carmel, residents who admire and share Carmel ideals.

*"Soothin' calm of gentle days,
Like a magic spell.
Life is full of pleasant days:
Nature kind of laughs and plays;
Traveler rests and dreams—and stays
Down at old Carmel."*

Mrs. Eleanor Stimson has returned from a visit in San Francisco. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Van Wyck Brooks.

The Misses Charlotte Phelps and Eleanor Richards of San Jose are spending a month with Miss Phelps' sister, Mrs. Argyll Campbell.

Mrs. May Ives who has taken the Tom Lisk Cottage for the summer has as her guests Mrs. John Tretheway and Mrs. Winifred Burrell of San Francisco.

Mrs. William Patterson and Mrs. James J. Charlton of Denver are here for a two months stay. They have taken the Emma Williams cottage on Casanova.

Mrs. Robert W. Bernard and her children, Robert and Jean, of New York, are here for the summer, visiting Mrs. Bernard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McKee.

Mrs. Clunie and her daughter Helen have returned after a short visit in Palo Alto. Mr. Clunie is an attorney at that place and expects to join his family later in the season.

On July 20th, the annual summer exhibition of paintings will be shown at the Arts and Crafts Hall. The exhibit will be more than usually interesting and will contain paintings not only of local artists but those of outsiders as well.

Mrs. C. A. McCullom left recently to visit her daughter, Mrs. Clute, whose home is in Minneapolis. Mrs. McCullom expects to stop for a short time in Chicago after which she will return to her Carmel home.

The Sunset School en masse attended a picnic held in Paradise Park Saturday afternoon. The teachers, Misses Powers, Day, and Thornton, enjoyed the outing as much as did the children in their charge.

Professor G. E. K. Branch and wife of Berkeley are visiting Mrs. Hilda Argo for three weeks. Professor Branch is connected with the chemistry department of the University of California.

Little Louise Parker, grand daughter of Mrs. L. H. Rask, while playing in the yard of her home, fell and sustained a compound fracture of her left arm. Her injury is rapidly healing under the care of Dr. Martin McAuley.

Mabel Kimball, teacher of Spanish in the San Jose high school, is building a summer home on San Carlos street.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Turner and Mrs. Turner's sister, Miss Faustina Snadoni, have returned from a vacation at Tassajara.

Marcella Moore of San Jose, her daughter Mildred Luther, and son Ted, have been spending some time at their home in the north woods.

C. B. Seldonridge and family from Colorado Springs, have taken the Whitehead cottage for three months. Mr. Seldonridge is a federal grain inspector.

George Lord of La Jolla, cousin of Mrs. George Seideneck, and his friend, Mr. Daniel, of Los Angeles, stopped in Carmel for a few days en route.

Up to Date.

A Philadelphia builder advertises that all houses he is erecting are being wired for radio telephone service.

That starts a lot of talk. Nothing Americans like more than a thing with the latest improvements.

A few years hence prospective tenants, after inspecting a house, will say: "Plenty of closet room, a large bath, good plumbing, everything convenient. You have, of course, an airplane landing on the roof?"

Airplanes soon will take off by rising straight up in the air. Airplane landings on house roofs will be as common as garages are now.

A Quick Thinker.

"You didn't wink at this young woman?"

"No, your honor. Some foreign substance got into my eyes and made me wince. I was really suffering."

"But she also says you smiled at her. How can a man smile at a pretty girl when his eye is giving him great pain?"

"Your honor, where the fair sex is concerned I have Spartan courage."

"Umph! I doubt if you have Spartan courage, but your mental alertness impresses the court. I'll assess a nominal fine of $5."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Are the Pleiades Dimmer?
The question presents itself whether three stars of the constellation of the Pleiades have less brilliancy than formerly, or whether prehistoric man had a better sight than ours, or if he was wont to climb up the mountains to examine the nearest stars, or if the atmosphere of past ages was purer than ours?

This problem arises from the fact that we see from below only seven of the stars of the Pleiades and that the last three stars can only be seen by ascending to the highest summits, while there have just been discovered stones, dating from prehistoric times upon which the ten stars are engraved.

This interesting question in astronomy and archeology has been broached to the French Academy of Sciences by M. Bigourdan.

Climax Furniture Store

The Big Store on Franklin street is offering very interesting inducements to home-furnishers.

Particularly in Bedroom Furniture, which is going at 20 to 30 per cent under current prices.

Suites and odd pieces in Ivory and Gray Enamel, Walnut, Maple and Oak—priced lower than at any time during the last eight years.

For instance: An Ivory Dresser (rather small, of course) enameled, on hardwood, at $21.00.

We will have about 200 pieces at these low prices.

It is quite assured that we are to advance somewhat in all lines of merchandise—which fact increases interest in our offering.

And you'd better annex a few of those Grass Arm Chairs at $4.50 each. Call anyway. If you don't buy, the Big Store will give you standards for comparison.

NEW YORK IS LARGEST CITY

American metropolis, in population, has gone far ahead of the Capital of England.

New York has surpassed London in population, according to the New York city census committee, if the same radius of territory is included within New York city limits as is calculated.

Dr. Walter Laidlaw, executive secretary, figures show that within a radius of 19 miles of the city hall there was on January 1, 1920, a population of 344,508 more persons than in the metropolitan police district of "Greater London," says the New York Herald.

Greater London, it is explained, includes not only London county, but an "outer ring" in which the metropolitan police have specified powers and duties.

The Greater London suburban area, irregular in outline, extends as far in some directions as 19 miles from Charing Cross," says Doctor Laidlaw. "It seems proper, therefore, to comparing Greater London and New York suburban territory within 19 miles of the city hall."

This radius reaches Tottenville, Staten Island; part of Westchester and Nassau counties and the part of New Jersey that includes Newark, Jersey City and other large population centers immediately adjacent to New York.

The population of Greater London on June 19, 1921, was 7,476,168, while that of "Largest New York," including the outlying districts, on January 1, 1920, was 7,820,676. London increased in the 30 years between 1891 and 1921, 1,844,362 persons, while Largest New York increased, between 1900 and 1910, 1,879,546 persons.

NEED NOT DREAD POISON IVY

Science Announces the Discovery That Gasoline Will Prevent Evil Effects So Much Dreaded.

The fear of poison ivy, which has kept many a city dweller away from the woods and meadows a whole season through, is now an unnecessary fear. The specter in the shadows of the forest is gone. Science has provided the means for warding off the illness which otherwise would follow infection. The remedy is just an application of ordinary gasoline. Benzine may be used instead.

Science has discovered that the irritation of the skin, in ivy poisoning, is no different from any other chemical burn, and that gasoline or benzine will dissolve and remove the poisonous oil of the ivy if applied in time. As many as eight hours may elapse between the touching of the ivy and the application of the remedy. Even persons on hikes in lonely districts may benefit by the discovery, since any passing motorist can supply enough gasoline to do the work.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Insect's Depredations Enormous.

The rhinoceros-beetle is rendering the plantations along the coast of German New Guinea valueless, and unless the Australian government, which holds the mandate, does something to fight the pest the plantations will be nothing more than monuments to the depredations of the rhino. A correspondent says: "In one or two instances they represent an appalling loss, and the sweeping away of the fruits of from ten to twenty years' hard work. During the German occupation a determined effort was made to wipe out the beetle, and to this end half-a-dozen scientists were imported from the Cameroons and Germany, and attached to the local bureau of agriculture. These investigators tried to find a spray that would kill the parasite without damaging the palms, and they were well on their way to success when the war came and they fled. Since then nothing has been done except by the beetle, who every year renders a certain number of plantations valueless. The authorities don't seem to realize the seriousness of the thing."

GOT TAPESTRIES AT BARGAIN

Vienna Pawnbroker Would Have Done Good Stroke of Business Had Not Police Interfered.

A distracted young widow, reports the Vienna correspondent of the London Daily Mail, took one of three tapestries found under her father's bed to a pawnbroker and obtained a loan of about $15. She was amazed and scared when they told her the tapestry was a Gobelin worth millions of crowns.

The Gobelins are the property of Prince Czartoryska, who had given them to the young woman's father to guard. When the man discovered one was missing from the hiding place under his mattress he rushed to the police, who tracked down and arrested his daughter.

The weeping girl told the judge that she was married eighteen months ago and her husband died the day her baby was born. She became homeless and went to lodge with her father, who had been in the service of the prince. She meant to redeem the Gobelin with the first money she earned.

The prince said he had suffered no injury, as the tapestries were undamaged and the amount the girl had borrowed was no more than he had meant to pay her father for taking care of them.

When the young mother was acquitted her father repeatedly kissed her tear-stained face and led her from the court.

HAD EXAMPLE IN ROGUEY

Famous "Captain Von Koepenick" Not the First to Make Fraudulent Use of Army Uniform.

The recent death of Voigt, the famous "Captain von Koepenick," reminds Le Petit Parisien that he had precursors of the same rare audacity in Paris.

In Paris, during the Directory, two men of military aspect presented themselves at the Nouvelle barracks, provided with forged orders of the police prefect and commandant of the city.

In virtue of these orders they requisitioned two sergeants and some soldiers, and went with them to Rue Richelieu, then the Rue de la Loi, where they entered the house occupied by a young Turkish diplomat.

Showing their false warrant, they ransacked the rooms and furniture of the young Turk, took his jewels and his gold and threatened to take him to prison; but finally, on his request, left him at home guarded by one of the sergeants and two or three soldiers.

After which, dismissing the rest of the troops, they departed and have never been seen since.

The two men were thieves for whom the police of that time were looking in vain.

Carmel Woods—Attractive New Addition of the Del Monte Properties Company

Midway
Point
A Rugged Bit of Coast Line Near Carmel
Woods

Community pride is stimulated by such an announcement as that just made by the Del Monte Properties Company that twenty-five acres of pine and oak-clad land are to be added to Carmel in a home-site subdivision known as Carmel Woods.

Without constant stimulation community pride dies, and it matters not whether it be stimulated from within or from without. In this instance the stimulus comes from without. It is for us of Carmel-by-the-Sea to accept the challenge in an enthusiastic spirit and to profit by this external justification of the faith that is in us.

Carmel Woods expresses the important truth that others believe in us almost as profoundly as we believe in ourselves.

There are plenty of arresting statistics to bolster the position of those that regard Carmel-by-the-Sea as just a little bit more desirable than any other region on earth. But let us have a statistical truce just now. Declaring a moratorium on statistics, let us strengthen our belief in Carmel-by-the-Sea and in that vigorous little youngster Carmel Woods, by recalling bits of praise inspired by esthetic considerations.

"Many flowers and beautiful," exclaimed Padre Junipero Serra when he found himself in this California Paradise, "and today I have the queen of them all, the Rose of Castile."

Those Spaniards loved nature with a passionate love, so one is not surprised at the tenderness with which they described this region.

Padre Serra must be mentioned first since he was the founder of our beautiful Carmel, but one hundred and sixty-seven years before the coming of Serra, Captain-General Viscaino in a letter to King Philip III of Spain had waxed eloquent over the exquisite attractions of our countryside.

True, Viscaino mentioned the pines only for their utilitarian value for conversion into "masts and yards, even though the ships be of a thousand and burden", and seemed to see in the live oaks and white oaks only their adaptability for ship-building purposes; but surely the old soldier loved them for their noble beauty too, for in the next breath he is celebrating the rosemary, the vine of Alexandria, the marvelous climate "like that of Castile" and the fertility of the soil.

Our City Planning Commission is working sympathetically with the subdividers of Carmel Woods. May we not suggest to them the propriety of having a Viscaino Avenue in Carmel Woods in honor of that first-comer who was also our first panegyrist?

Reverting to Padre Serra and his companions, "They found themselves", writes Father Zacheus J. Maher, the president of Santa Clara University, "they found themselves in a wondrously loved land. This fair land was fair in all that lived in it but man." Father Maher is versed in all that pertains to the beginnings of Carmel, so one does not dispute him lightly. But if he infers that the women of this region were not fair to look upon, there is Viscaino to contradict him—he declared to his royal master that they were "of pleasing countenance". And nearly three hundred years later that polished French traveler La Perouse said the same thing.

Verily, the women have always been beautiful in Carmel. It is a point to be insisted on. The climate must have a lot to do with it, and the beauty of nature, which is catching, at least insofar as the gentler sex is concerned. We shall look for beautiful women in Carmel Woods, and we expect to find them!

Seriously speaking, beauty of environment certainly makes for beauty of mind and heart. As has been said by a profound student of esthetics,

"Beauty is the dial on which is registered the degree of civilization attained by a people. It is the indicator of character development in the individual. If you want your thoughts clean and orderly, surround yourself with beauty."

That has been the theory by which Carmel-by-the-Sea has progressed. It is the theory by which Carmel Woods has been laid out. That being the case, our community pride can safely stimulate itself by a sympathetic study of the plans elaborated for this latest addition to our community.

Pine Needles

Elliott Boke spent the week-end with her family in Carmel.

Mrs. Mary Miller of San Francisco is visiting her sister Mrs. E. H. Lewis for two weeks.

R. C. DeYoe is taking advantage of his mother's return by resting at Tassajara Springs for a week or ten days.

Harris Comings has sold his Winton Six to be used as a bus by one of the well known lines operating down the valley.

Capt. L. T. Ward and son Kenneth left Saturday for a fishing trip in the Santa Barbara mountains. Doubtless we will hear of some wonderful catches (almost).

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gordon of Willits are stopping at Pine Inn. Mr. Gordon who served in the British Army during the war was among the first to enter the auto racing field. He drove the Peugeot cars for a number of years and is now in the automobile business.

At a meeting of the Board of Supervisors, the map of Carmel Woods was approved and accepted without change. Carmel Woods is the ninth addition to Carmel-by-the-Sea and gives promise of becoming one of the most exclusive residential districts.

Prof. and Mrs. Lea are staying at Pine Inn. Prof. Lea is connected with the State Board of Health and is here to investigate sanitary conditions at the canneries and bottling works of Monterey and neighboring towns. The Leas were guests of General McDonald who has extensive ranch interests in Napa and Sonoma counties.

Mrs. Herman J. Bremer spent last week in San Francisco selecting furniture for the new cottage about to be opened on the north side. Mr. Bremer has added his name to the interesting list of Carmelites who can build their own homes.

When the Carmel fire siren awoke the echoes of the Peninsula at 2:40 Monday morning, the fire laddies surely answered the call. They got down town in record breaking time, only to learn that it was a brush fire and had been extinguished.

Thomas Vincent Cator returned from San Jose last Saturday. He reports progress on the opera "Aladdin," which he is writing with Perry Newberry. He has been engaged on the orchestration, arrangement of choral parts, etc., and is returning to the Garden City today to complete the work.

Kamuela Searle and Joe Morris made an all night ride to San Francisco and back last Friday to secure plaster necessary in their modeling. They left here at 8 o'clock in the evening and returned at 8 the next morning. Mr. Searle expects to leave soon for Los Angeles where he intends to make a bust of Cecil DeMille.

Charles S. Walter, representative of the Clark Wise music house of San Francisco, registered at Pine Inn a few days ago.

Colonel W. Allen of the Elkhorn Gun Club who is making an auto tour of the central and lower parts of California was the guest of Peter Mawdsley over the week-end. Mr. Allen has charge of the shooting course and club house and is known to many who motor down the Ridge Route.

Edward McMurtry and family arrived in Carmel last week from Pasadena. Mr. McMurtry has large oil interests in the south. He also owns valuable property on our sand dunes, upon which he will probably build in the near future. This summer they are to occupy the Cooke house.

Mrs. Thomas Greaves has bought the Abbott place on Monte Verde street near Ocean avenue, and she and her family are settled there for an indefinite stay. Mrs. Greaves has already worked a transformation in the garden, making one of the most colorful spots in town. The place formerly belonged to Mrs. Greaves who sold it to Mrs. DeYoe. It passed into possession of the Abbotts and now returns to the original owner.

Miss Christine Burton entertained at her home on San Carlos last Friday evening in honor of her birthday. Games were played and later refreshments were served. Among those present were Misses Florence Edler and her sister Vivian, Moira Wallace, Ruth Cator, Vere Basham, Virginia Burton and Master Richard Boke, Billie Heron, Gordon Campbell, Jack Gordon, Jimmie Hopper, Fletcher Dutton, Waldo Hicks and Ross Burton.

Dr. Henry A. Malley will give a stereopticon lecture next Monday night at the Manzanita Hall, on the subject "Among the Cannibals of Savage Papua."

Friends of Mrs. Irene Cator will be glad to know that she is once more at her home in Carmel after having spent several weeks at the New Monterey Mineral Springs.

Moving Picture Programs for June at the Manzanita Theater

Thursday, June 15—Will Rodgers in Honest Hutch and a Bray Pictograph.
